DEAR FRIENDS,

The Whole Child's 2019-2020 fiscal year was unlike any other we have experienced in our 63-year history. We were fortunate to celebrate monumental achievements, some resulting from concerted efforts to further our mission and others as a result of our response to the unexpected and unprecedented COVID-19 pandemic crisis.

We witnessed first-hand how this health crisis disproportionately affected many of our already vulnerable clients; we were suddenly tasked to find safe and innovative ways to deliver our services to them while ensuring both clients and staff's safety. Our team faced these challenges with Unwavering Commitment to our mission. In our Mental Health and Parent Enrichment practices, The Whole Child was recognized as an early adopter of telehealth services. We quickly pivoted our Nutrition Education workshops to an online video series stressing the importance of health and wellness during these stressful times. In our Housing practice, we reinforced critical services for homeless families and continued in-person consultations. By keeping our focus on the clients we serve, the tremendous efforts of The Whole Child team enabled us to overcome many of the barriers the pandemic created.

In September 2019, we opened our first-ever residential complex, Safe Families Interim Housing Facility, located in Echo Park, where we provided shelter to 80 families throughout the year. Our largest single donation to date - a $5M grant, was awarded to us by the Bezos Day 1 Families Fund to help solve family homelessness. Building on this milestone, we launched several other fundraising and giving events, including our first online appeals, Giving Tuesday and A Day of Giving - Care in Times of Crisis, surpassing our goals, several in-kind drives, as well as securing several other grants. We were overwhelmed by the community's generosity and compassion, whose support expanded beyond our existing donor base.

It is a privilege to lead the staff of dedicated professionals at The Whole Child and work alongside many partners that share our mission of helping families raise emotionally and physically healthy children and have a place to call home. Our heartfelt thanks to our entire staff, Board of Directors, funders, and partners for your Unwavering Commitment to the children and families we serve.

OUR TOP TREATED DIAGNOSES

SPOTLIGHT ON PIER, A NEW PROGRAM FOR YOUTH AT-RISK OF SEVERE MENTAL ILLNESS

The Whole Child was selected by the LA County Department of Mental Health as the exclusive provider in SPA 7 to offer early psychosis assistance for youth ages 12-25. Powerful Initiatives for Early Recovery (PIER) is designed to provide early treatment for youth who pose a clinical high-risk of developing severe mental illness, such a schizophrenia and psychosis.

By detecting and treating patients at the onset of psychosis, negative impact of psychosis may be mitigated. The PIER program assists youth and families to increase performance in all areas of life by building coping skills, reducing stress and implementing problem-solving techniques.

1 Per a consumer survey conducted by the LA County Department of Mental Health, 97.4% of The Whole Child clients strongly agreed to overall satisfaction on services received. Indexing higher than the county average. Consumer Perception Survey Fall 2019 - Service Area 7, Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health.

Feeling Fearful to Hopeful

Before coming to The Whole Child, I was going through a tough time at home. I was in fear and "always on my toes." My family had a difficult time accepting what I was going through.

In the beginning of receiving help from The Whole Child, I thought therapy was for crazy people. As time went by, I became more comfortable with asking for help and getting help. My therapist helped me to grow as a person, helped me feel safe, feel secure and understand what would get me in trouble and keep me out of trouble. My family noticed I was growing into a young man.

Since coming to The Whole Child, I have learned that being afraid, sad, and angry is normal, and that I have to talk about my feelings. I've been honest, nicer, and forgiving to those around me. I am motivated to see what my future will be like and to do things I've never done before. I want to do good for myself and be proud of what I can accomplish. No matter what life throws at you, there's always hope.

OUR TOP SERVICES PROVIDED

SPOTLIGHT ON GRAND OPENING OF OUR FIRST INTERIM HOUSING SHELTER, SAFE FAMILIES

The Whole Child celebrated the opening of its Safe Families Interim Housing Facility in Echo Park, marking the organization's entry into the field of housing development. Safe Families provides 44 units/102 new beds into Los Angeles County's Coordinate Entry System (CES) for families experiencing homelessness. Resident families receive an array of interdisciplinary services designed to provide a strong start on their journey back to permanent housing, including the agency's own mental health, parent enrichment and nutrition education services.

The facility provides a safe place for children and their families to heal and find stability needed to be successful long term. The Whole Child would like to thank Supervisor Hilda Solis and the Los Angeles Homeless Services Authority (LAHSA) for providing the funding to bring this program to life and ensure its success.

From Homeless To Homeowner

After nearly losing my baby at 17 weeks pregnant due to work-related stress, I decided to leave my job. My boyfriend was our only source of income and he could not make ends meet. Our cars were repossessed and without a car to commute, he lost his job soon after. We were a family of 6 with the youngest being a newborn and we were homeless. My biggest fear was my children being taken away because everything happened in a blink of an eye. Being homeless made me feel as if I had failed my children.

We were referred to The Whole Child and they were able to help us with housing, deposit money, furniture and home essentials. We knew our time on the program would be limited and we wanted to be independent enough to be able to buy a home when the time came. After my boyfriend was hired at his dream job, we researched what steps to take to purchase a home. With hard work, we were able to save towards a down payment. We started the home buying process and moved into our new home in June 2020. We achieved our first big goal of buying our forever home. I am able to stay home and take care of my children. We became debt free and are now able to buy what is needed while still having money to spend on extra things for the kids.

My experience with The Whole Child has been the best one ever. The Whole Child took us in when everyone else turned us away. My prayers were answered.

Gaining the Confidence to Raise My Baby

I was referred to The Whole Child's Home Visiting Program through a program in Santa Monica. Before entering the program, I didn't feel I had patience with my children. I was having a hard time finding housing and I needed support as I was becoming a single mother again.

Home visitation services have provided me with different resources in the community, improved my parenting skills, and given me activities to bond with my child. I am learning about his milestones, development and [forming] connections with other single mommies and their babies. The staff at The Whole Child and my parent educator are warm and welcoming.

My child and I have learned new activities and skills from the program. I see a bright future with positivity for my children and me. The Whole Child has positively impacted my life. I was going through a lot in the beginning and it has helped me feel proud of being a single mom. The Whole Child has given me confidence in raising my new baby.

With school campus closures due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the CalFresh Healthy Living team remained steadfast in its commitment to promote a healthy lifestyle at a critical time in promoting immunity building. The team launched a bilingual series of educational videos promoting healthy eating and physical activity, with topics such as healthy meal preparation, shopping on a budget, and tips on staying healthy and active at home.

The videos, 37 in all, were made available to the community via Instagram, Zoom and YouTube. Partner school districts also promoted the video series to their students. Because of the team's dedication, The Whole Child received the CalFresh Healthy Living Grant with a focus on nutrition and physical activity promotion that extends until 2022.

Maintaining Health While Homeless

Monserrat and her four children were living at The Whole Child's Safe Families Housing Facility when she heard about the CalFresh Healthy Living Physical Activity classes being offered on-site. Determined to teach her children the importance of maintaining a healthy lifestyle despite their challenges, Monserrat enrolled her family for one-on-one workshops with The Whole Child's Nutrition Education team.

Three mornings each week, Monserrat and her children consistently attended the CalFresh Healthy Living classes. Each session started off with a review of brain functions and how physical activity helps the brain become more active and generate new pathways that help with focus and concentration.

Monserrat and her children's commitment and enthusiasm for the program made each of them an example of resiliency and perseverance. Monserrat is a role model for her children in leading the family towards a healthier and more active lifestyle no matter their circumstances.

"I feel better about myself when I exercise."
